In the hall, there is a door

an armchair and there are some stairs.

Let's observe...

There is a door. There are some stairs.

Pour parler de ce qu'il y a j'utilise l'expression:

There is suivie d'un nom au singulier.

Ce nom est précédé de a (an devant une voyelle)

There are suivie d'un nom au pluriel.

Ce nom est précédé de some ou d'un nombre.

Let's practise : There is or there are?

In front of my house, there is a nice front garden and there are some beautiful flowers.

In the garden, there are three trees and there is an armchair under the trees. Funny isn't it!

Complete avec some / a / an

This is my lovely house, there is a blue front door and there is a nice garden in front of it. There are a few bow windows. There are some large windows and an enormous swimming pool and there are some trees around the swimming pool.
