Do you know the legend of King Arthur?

This illumination is from The Quest for the Holy Grail and the Death of Arthur, attributed to Gautier Map.

The legend of King Arthur.

On the day Prince Arthur was born, his mother Ygraine and his father, the good King Uther Pendragon gave their baby to Merlin the magician. The king said “My son and I have many dangerous enemies. Take him and give him to a good knight who will love him and protect him. When he is older, Merlin, please help him become a king”. And so Arthur was adopted and lived in the home of Sir Hector with his son Kay but he didn’t know he was a prince.

My father and brother Kay want to go, so we all go together. When we arrive we can see a massive marble stone with a sword in it. Merlin says: "This is a magic stone. Only the real king can take the sword out."

All the knights try and try, but it's too difficult. No one succeeds".

"You try, Arthur, come on!" Merlin says. I try and it is so easy! Everyone is very surprised! Merlin says: "Arthur is the new king of England!" Merlin tells me, my father was Uther Pendragon.

Let's think!

You must protect women and children!

You mustn't disobey your king!

Le roi impose aux chevaliers de protéger femmes et enfants.

Il leur interdit de lui désobéir.

Must sert à exprimer une obligation et mustn't une interdiction.

Let's think!

Arthur, you should be careful, you have a lot of enemies.

You shouldn't go out at night, it's too dangerous!

Merlin donne des conseils.

On utilise should / shouldn't pour donner des conseils.

Let's think!

The knight can't take the sword out, it's too difficult.

Le chevalier n'y arrive pas, il en est incapable.

Arthur can take the sword out, it's easy!

Pour Arthur, c'est facile, il y arrive, il en est capable!

On utilise can /can't pour parler de ce que l'on peut/sait faire.

Let’s think!

Must/ can / should sont des auxiliaires.

Ils sont invariables.

Ils sont suivis d’une base verbale.

Knights …….. serve their country, it’s their job!

must

can

should

Knights must serve their country, it’s their job!

Arthur dear boy, listen to me you …….. be careful!

must

can

should

Arthur dear boy, listen to me you should be careful!

Merlin …….. do magic tricks because he’s a magician .

must

can

should

Merlin can do magic tricks because he’s a magician.

Knights …….. travel at night, it’s dangerous.

mustn’t

can’t shouldn’t

Knights shouldn’t travel at night, it’s dangerous.

Arthur is the king, he ……. do bad things.

mustn’t

can’t

Arthur is the king, he mustn’t do bad things.

It's your turn!

The code of chivalry

- Serve your king and your country.
- Fight injustice.
- ~~lie~~
